MESSAGE

I am happy to know that the I.C. & A.S. Officers' Wives' Association of Maharashtra is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year.

The members of the I.C. & A.S. Officers' Wives' Association of Maharashtra have undertaken major philanthropic activities – ranging from providing humanitarian aid to victims of natural calamities to the education and upliftment of the underprivileged, poor and needy members of society – especially women and children. It has also taken dynamic initiatives in espousing environmental causes. The launch of its website – “www.iasowamah.org” is another laudable initiative on the part of this remarkable organization.

The efforts of the Association in bringing together the fraternity of IAS Officers of Maharashtra and their families hailing from all parts of India culminated in the making of a vibrant organization to which all members can look forward to.

I congratulate you on your noteworthy achievements. I am certain that the website will not only provide a foundation for networking with the officers and their families all over Maharashtra, but also extend to people all over India and thus become a window for the dissemination of information about this accomplished organization.

I send my best wishes for the success of the Website and your efforts to take your Association to new heights.

(Vilasrao Deshmukh)
